LABOUR MARKET STATISTICS AND ANALYSIS ACADEMY

REFLECTING ON THE MAJOR OUTCOMES OF THE LATEST INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES OF LABOUR STATISTICIANS AND MEASURING DECENT WORK IN THE CONTEXT OF THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

OVERVIEW

SNAPSHOT OF THE ACADEMY

The adoption of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development requires governments and stakeholders to monitor progress towards the defined goals and targets related to Decent Work and Economic Growth. The 19th and 20th ICLS resolutions on work statistics are crucial for the analysis of decent work related SDG indicators, particularly SDG 8 on promoting inclusive and sustainable growth, employment and decent work for all. A strong statistical system for producing, collecting and disseminating reliable, comprehensive and timely labour market information is critical for evidence-based policy making which promotes “full and productive employment and decent work for all”. The ILO Department of Statistics in close collaboration with the International Training Centre of the ILO are proud to offer the 2019 Labour Market Statistics and Analysis Academy with a particular focus on the outcomes of the 19th and 20th ICLS concerning the emerging trends in the world of work, and the SDG monitoring framework to measure decent work

HOW & WHAT

HOW DOES IT WORK?

This academy prepares national and international stakeholders to use the new SDG statistical monitoring system. It is organized into two separate, yet related, “learning paths.”

- Learning Path 1:

This path is designed for officials involved in SDG indicator monitoring and reporting at local, national, and international levels, as well as labour market and development analysts.

- Learning Path 2:

This path is made for labour statistics practitioners, including managers and technical staff, from national statistical offices, ministries of labour, and related institutions.

WHAT ARE THE TOPICS?

The academy includes plenary sessions, discussions of key concepts, and studies of best practices relevant to both learning paths.

- Key international statistical standards, including the 20th ICLS resolution on statistics on work relationships and the 19th ICLS resolution on work statistics
- SDG Global Indicator Framework
- Gender mainstreaming in labour statistics and relevant SDG indicators
- Good practices in labour market information systems and SDG monitoring strategies

HOW WILL I LEARN?

Participants of the academy will enhance their technical capacities and skills to identify, collect, analyze, and disseminate labour market information and other indicators related to decent work

- Plenary sessions allow participants to share knowledge relevant across learning paths
- Specific sessions facilitate more intensive learning on key topics within learning paths
- Panel discussions and group exercises provide opportunities to practice and collaborate

WHO

- Labour statisticians from national statistical offices, ministries of labour, and other government institutions responsible for SDG statistical monitoring
- Employment and development policy analysts from national statistical offices, labour ministries and other government institutions, research and academic institutions, international organizations, and donor organizations
- Officials responsible for managing the production and dissemination of labour market statistics, particularly for national SDG reporting
- Social partners: Employers' and workers' organization.
