OVERVIEW / SNAPSHOT OF THE COURSE

The South-4-Care Learning Hub, hosted by the International Labour Organization (ILO) and the International Training Centre of the ILO (ITCILO), is a global blended training programme designed to foster collaboration, peer learning, and knowledge exchange in the care economy. Bringing together policymakers, social partners, and care economy stakeholders from countries at different levels of development, the initiative facilitates cross-regional dialogue to tackle key challenges and promote integrated and coherent care and support policies and systems for decent work and gender equality worldwide.

The blended format combines an interactive online component—allowing participants to engage in knowledge-building and preparatory activities—with an in-person learning hub that provides a dynamic space for peer learning, practical application, and exchange of illustrative practices. This structure ensures inclusive participation, enabling a diverse range of actors from different countries to contribute to and benefit from the programme.

The South-4-Care Learning Hub leverages South-South and Triangular Cooperation (SSTC) to:

- strengthen knowledge and implementation of international labour standards and the ILO Resolution and Plan of Action on Decent Work and the Care Economy.
- Enhance capacity and policy innovation in employment generation, disability-inclusive care policies and services, labour protection, fair migration, skills development, and financing mechanisms for the care economy.
- Promote effective models of care provision, including the role of governments, private sector actors, the social and solidarity economy (SSE) and other community-led initiatives.
- Promote social dialogue and labour rights, ensuring better conditions for care workers, particularly migrant, domestic, and community health and care workers.
- Promote the voice and representation care worker organizations, organizations of employers of care workers and unpaid family carers and supporting those receiving care, including persons with disability, racialized groups and persons in situations of vulnerability.
- Facilitate peer learning through real-world case studies, enabling countries to share and adapt successful South-South cooperation experiences in developing and scaling up care policies.
- Promote network and collaboration among economy actors in countries at different levels of development

As a global initiative, the Learning Hub creates a unique space for cross-regional collaboration, equipping participants with practical tools and strategies to build resilient, inclusive, and sustainable care and support systems in a rapidly evolving world.
